WATCHUNG TEEN HOLDS FUNDRAISER FOR LIBRARY

Watchung teen Jacqueline Lee celebrated her birthday in June in an unusual way - she gave to others. Lee planned and organized an "Evening Outdoors," with Japanese finger foods (generously donated by Shogun 22) and a live Jazz band on the "patio" below the library. Lee also offered origami pieces for sale, including her OrigamiUSA award-winning creation "Kusudama Versailles," made from 60 sheets of paper.

Explaining her decision to raise funds to keep a library in Watchung, Lee said, "The Watchung library is one of my favorite places to go, and I can truly say it has enriched my life. I planned this fundraiser to support saving our beloved library. Thank you to all who participated in the event and to those who couldn't make it yet still generously donated to this important cause. It was amazing to see how much a group of citizens with a common mission can accomplish together."

Reporting that she "had a great time," Watchung resident Cori Haveson commented that, "The band and food were fabulous. Everyone looked like they were really enjoying themselves. There was an impressive turnout of young people. What a fun way to support the library! I hope we do it once a month, next time with a dance floor!"

Thomas Cheng called the event "incredible." He observed that it "truly reflected the heart of the matter. The Library is not just about books, it is about building a strong community. It was great to see people of all ages, race, and culture come together in agreement."

Former Borough Council member Tom Franklin remarked that "The fellowship among us was very apparent, as it would be among those who share a worthy cause. Our determination to save the Watchung Library has not faded in the least."

The event drew about 60 library supporters and raised funds for the effort to keep a library in Watchung.

FENCER ANOUSHEH REID PINS DOWN GOLD AT U.S. NATIONAL FENCING CHAMPIONSHIPS

The sport of fencing combines the best of physical and mental fitness, something that 11-year-old Anousheh Reid has been doing quite successfully.

The Watchung resident recently returned from the U.S. National Fencing Championships in St. Louis as the gold medal winner of the Women's Epee Division for her age group.

Anousheh and her sister Sobia, 13, have been fencing for six years, the past three competitively. Sobia also performed well at the St. Louis event, placing 36th of 172 competitors in the 14 and under category.

There are three forms of fencing: Epee, Foil and Sabre, each of which uses a different type of weapon and has different rules. The Reid girls compete in Epee, the only one in which the entire body is the valid target area. It takes a lot of discipline and practice.

"There is a lot of patiently nudging your opponent back and forward, trying to trick them into making a mistake so you can attack," said Michael Reid, their father. "(Epee) is often referred to as 'physical chess' because of the mental strategy involved."

The girls spend about four days a week at the Medeo Fencing Club in Bridgewater, about 10-12 hours a week, plus tournaments every second week or so. While there are local and regional tournaments throughout the year, there are two major national events on the youth calendar. Besides winning gold at the National Championships, Anousheh also took gold at this year's North American Cup, which was held in Baltimore in March.

Anousheh and Sobia are focusing on fencing now, but they have also trained in gymnastics at Surgent's Elite in Westfield and Taekwondo in Warren.

Anousheh was a student at Oak Knoll in Summit but will start sixth grade in September at Newark Academy, where Sobia is already a student.

The Medeo Fencing Club, at 783 East Main St., in Bridgewater has beginner, intermediate and advanced programs. It requires all participants to wear the full uniform while fencing, including knickers, jacket and underarm protector. For more information, contact medeofencing.com or call 732-469-2244.

TAKE A MUSICAL TOUR THROUGH THE SOUNDS OF SUMMER AT LIBRARY

Nothing says summer quite like music - the combination of warm weather and rhythm creates a feeling unlike any other. Explore everything from Bruce Springsteen to West African drums this summer at the Somerset County Library System of New Jersey (SCLSNJ) through an entertaining series of music programs that include live performances, lectures, and workshops.

"The lazy days of summer are here, but SCLSNJ has been very busy planning a comprehensive music series," said Marcela Dunham, SCLSNJ's system programming coordinator. "If you like to learn more about the Beatles, Bruce Springsteen, or perhaps classical music, we've got you covered."

(above) On August 4 from 2-3 p.m., the Jane Stuart Jazz Band will perform the songs of John Coltrane, Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis, Nancy Wilson, Duke Ellington, and more at SCLSNJ's Bound Brook Memorial Library branch, located at 402 East High Street in Bound Brook.

Take a tour through the sounds of summer and explore the series that will continue through August:

Jane Stuart Jazz Band: A Mixed Bag of Jazz (adults)

CLASS OF 2018 RECOGNIZED AT ANNUAL SENIOR AWARDS CEREMONY

Five State Championships by athletic teams, 15 National Merit Finalists, hundreds and even thousands of community service hours contributed, scores of subject matter excellence awards, 15 Eagle Scouts and 3 Girl Scout Gold Award recipients, and one New Jersey Governor's Award in Arts Education recipient were just some of the Watchung Hills Regional High School (WHRHS) Class of 2018 accomplishments recognized at the annual Senior Awards Ceremony, on Thursday Morning, June 14 2018, in the Performing Arts Center (PAC).

To start the ceremony, Senior Dan Zimmer led the Pledge of Allegiance, and Class Salutatorian Kevin Tan welcomed and celebrated achievements of the class.

Principal George Alexis welcomed students, students, faculty, administrators and Board of Education members.

"I've had the privilege of attending two reunions over the last month, one for high school and one for college," he said. "Both were reminders of how quickly time moves, but also of how important our formative years are. As you sit here today, I want you to consider your high school days: the experiences you've had and the people you've come to know. I also want you to keep in mind that though the awards go to individuals, they arise from the richness of your entire class and are evidence of the collective success you have achieved over the last four years."

Salutatorian Tan said, "The Class of 2018 is among the most accomplished that Watchung Hills has ever seen. We are a class of wrestling champions, decorated gymnasts, and basketball stars. We are a class of Regeneron Science Talent Search winners and a record number of National Merit Semifinalists, award-winning writers and all-state musicians. The selfless volunteers and passionate activists of our class have brought positive changes to our local and state communities. Our GLC pioneered Skylr the Hypnotist and Dancing with the Teachers, events that are now considered school year staples. From athletics, academics, to the arts, there is nothing our class cannot do. I can say with confidence that we have made our mark, and will continue to do so as we reflect upon what it took to attain these exceptional achievements."

The first award of the ceremony called attention to the fact that Health Educator Jill Gleeson had been named the WHRHS 2018 Teacher of the Year, which drew a loud applause from students.

Thank you to the gracious Project Graduation volunteers for a lovely breakfast. And a heartfelt thank you to Mrs. Vargo and of course Ms. Obuch, who paid attention to the smallest details. Together, they helped make this fifth annual awards ceremony dignified and memorable."

Alexis continued, "Class of 2018, individual accomplishments arise from a collective effort, and these awards recognize the strength of your entire class. Your diverse talents and perspectives have formed an impressive group that is now part of the Watchung Hills legacy. Thank you for reaching new heights. It's been a great four years. Let's finish strong."

Would you like to share your experiences? This is the perfect opportunity to share your travel memories with others. We will also have fun learning Italian trivia and then Lara Kats, Certified Dance Educator and Instructor, will teach us how to dance the Tarantella, an Italian Folk Dance.

"Sodium: Why Watch Your Intake?"

August 27

by Daryl Minch, M.Ed., CFCS, Family & Community Health Sciences Educator, Rutgers Cooperative Extension, 10:30 a.m. Your body needs sodium for many basic processes essential to life. It helps muscle function, allows nerves to send impulses throughout your body and helps regulate the balance of fluids in all of your tissues. But if you consume too much sodium, over time this can lead to potentially serious health problems. Managing your sodium intake is of key importance to maintaining your health and well-being. This program will highlight why you need to watch your intake, how to find the sodium content on food labels and suggest some salt alternatives to add flavor to your food.

The Warrenbrook Senior Center is located at 500 Warrenville Rd, Warren, NJ and can be reach by phone at 908-753-9440.

JUDGE SWEARS IN 14 CASA VOLUNTEERS

Submitted by Gretchen M. Boger-O'Bryan

Eleven Union County residents from New Providence, Berkeley Heights, Cranford, Elizabeth, Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Westfield — and three from out-of-county locales Bloomfield, Irvington and South Orange — recently took their oath before Union County Superior Court Judge James Hely to serve as CASA volunteers. This class proves no matter where one calls home, it's the heart for helping others that leads the way. Each new advocate — ranging from age 21 to 69 — will serve a Union County foster youth or sibling set in need of a constant in their lives, and a voice in court and the community.

Volunteers with Court Appointed Special

Advocates (CASA) of Union County serve as extra eyes and ears for family law judges hearing cases involving the county's abused, neglected or abandoned children removed from home and placed in foster care.

Successful advocates have varied backgrounds and diverse experiences, and this class is no exception: it included parents and non-parents, medical professionals, attorneys, homemakers, students and retirees, and most had no prior knowledge of the foster system. In addition, four volunteers were raised outside the United States. Family and friends, and CASA staff and board members looked on as Judge Hely performed the swearing-in and commemorative pins and certificates were presented. During a celebratory luncheon, advocates were matched to their case, a foster youth or sibling set.

CASA volunteers have court-ordered access to all parties in a foster child's life, including foster parents, doctors, caseworkers, therapists and teachers, and incorporate into court reports findings from these contacts as well as from their own time spent with the youth. Advocates ensure a youth's needs are met and their time in care is as short as possible.

It is CASA of Union County's goal that every Union County foster child have an advocate, yet half of the more than 500 such youth still await one. Could you be their voice? The next training classes are slated for the fall.

For details, contact Courtney at 908-293-8136 or cgreen@casaoofunioncounty.org, or log on to www.casaoofunioncounty.org.

“HOW VOLUNTEERING TRANSFORMED ME:” AN INTERVIEW WITH CARING CONTACT VOLUNTEER

Each year approximately 45,000 people die by suicide in the United States, 120 people each day, one person every 12 minutes. Though this tragically large number continues to increase annually, there is work being done to reverse this trajectory.

Caring Contact is an award-winning, volunteer-staffed crisis hotline and listening community. We compassionately serve those in emotional distress and educate our communities about the power of personal connection. In 2017, our volunteers responded to over 10,000 calls through our caring and crisis line. Contact Listeners are volunteers who listen to people in crisis over the phone. They receive 52 hours of listening and suicide awareness and intervention training before assisting people in need of support. Even after this rigorous training, most listeners are surprised by how volunteering transforms them. To give you a sense of their experience, here is an interview with a current Caring Contact volunteer listener (whose name is being withheld).

What is your professional background?

I am a recent college graduate. I studied Sociology and Psychology.

How would you describe your listening skills?

I would regard myself as a quiet listener. I know that probably sounds weird or maybe even obvious. But, after the training I realized how much talking I was doing when people were venting to me. Before I became a trained listener I don't think I realized how powerful the act of listening can be or how difficult it is sometimes. I used to be distracted when listening to people and I missed a lot. Through the training I've attached a real purpose to listening and listening well, which has made me better in a variety of aspects in my life.

Tell me about your training.

The training struck this balance between easing the volunteers into the material and also challenging people in ways that were a bit nerve-racking. I remember my first practice session where I was acting as the Listener. All I was supposed to do was listen and reflect on a feeling or two. This, honestly, turned out to be one of the most difficult role plays because all I wanted to do was solve what seemed like an obvious problem to me, rather than just really listen to what the person was saying.

I found that the training applied to both the hotline and also my everyday life. I think everyone's family members and friends are grateful when a person takes this training. I also loved the growth of each volunteer, it is so clearly visible because of the practice sessions and utilization of the skills we learned - there is a lot of development throughout those 12 weeks.

Do you ever feel like you get a call you can't handle? How do you cope?

The first few crisis calls were really scary. I remember that I decided on those few phone calls to just be there and to sit with the person in this dark, dark hole. By the end of the call we had developed a safety plan and the person was safe in that moment. After these types of calls, I usually debrief with someone in the office or another volunteer who is working at the same time as me.

Also, there is a bell in the phone room which lets someone in the office know you need help. There was one instance when my phone call got disconnected because I was so shaken up and didn't know what to do. Janet Sarkos, the Executive Director at Caring Contact and a volunteer listener, came in and talked me through the call. It's things like that that make the overwhelming calls easier. It's really helpful to be surrounded by people who have had similar calls, speaking to them is a huge way of coping for me.

What types of calls are most challenging?

Any call that involves someone being really down, feeling stuck and alone. Those are hard calls. They aren't necessarily difficult to manage, but so many of these calls stick with me and I want to do more, to change their living situations and that's just not possible. I think the most difficult calls are those that end before it seems like we have reached a safe plan, or have made enough progress - this has happened before and it's really hard to let those calls go.

Which call was really memorable for you?

One of the most memorable calls was from a college student. We talked for about 45 minutes. He told me that he's never told anyone the things that he's told me during our phone call. He disclosed that if he had not picked up the phone and talked to me, that he was planning on running in front of a truck on the highway. Knowing that someone called and just by speaking to me for an hour felt like they could go on for one more day, that's very powerful.

How did becoming a listener change you?

Being a listener has opened my eyes to how many people are struggling, how many people think about suicide but don't tell those they are close to. I now feel comfortable asking those I am close to if they are struggling or thinking of suicide. That's something I never would have done if it hadn't been for this training and experience. I now know how powerful listening can be, just listening to another person. It can change their life.
