LEARNING THROUGH THE ARTS AT CARL H. KUMPF SCHOOL

All teachers at Carl H. Kumpf Middle School used visual and performing arts in their lessons to enhance learning this fall. Eighth grade language arts teachers had their students designed covers for their independent reading books which had to include symbolism and various aspects of the stories. Graphic design concepts were used to help the students design covers that were simple, clear, and interesting. Sixth grade math teachers used grids and fractions for designing the layout of farm fields. Social Studies teachers had their students analyze and illustrate political cartoons as well as drawing and coloring images related to the ten plagues.

Sixth grade science teacher, Joe Rodriguez, had his students create nursery rhymes about the characteristics of Life and Cell Theory. He stated, "I've taken the students out of their normal comfort zones and helped them to learn what is typically dry material and gave it some life."

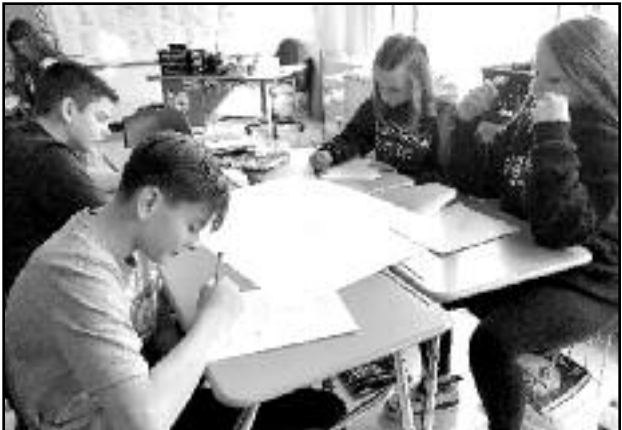

Danielle Bihuniak, seventh grade science teacher, is currently teaching chemical reactions at the atomic level. Her students used stop motion animation with Legos to demonstrate how atoms interact during a chemical reaction. Bihuniak stated, "It has given students a very concrete, visual understanding of the abstract idea of the Law of Conservation of Matter."

Cristina Romao-Carrano taught character development in storytelling to her sixth grade language arts classes using performing arts. She remarked, "Incorporating the arts in the lesson gave it a multi-sensory approach to teaching direct and indirect characterization." These are just a few examples of the many arts integration lessons taught at Kumpf School that day.

These lessons are part of Kumpf's initiative to integrate arts throughout the curriculum. A goal of incorporating the arts is to help the students learn non-arts subject material in a variety of ways that will increase student interest. Another goal is to help the teachers become more comfortable with using visual and performing arts in their lessons. Principal Richard Delmonaco states, "We are hoping that the arts become a part of the daily routines of teachers in various subject areas, not for something that is special, but something that is meaningful."

Arts Integration helps students to use critical and creative thinking to gain a better understanding of the content being taught. According to EducationCloset.com, "Arts Integration is a research-based approach to teaching and learning that has proven results for the past 30 years. For schools that commit to using arts integration with integrity, the results are astounding. Schools that intentionally use arts integration find student achievement rises by 10% or more across the board."

TYLER MEKOVETZ REACHES 100 POINT CAREER MARK

ALJ High School hockey player Tyler Mekovetz reached the 100 point career mark on December 5, 2018 with a goal and assist v. Cranford. Tyler is a 4-year Varsity Starter and current Assistant Captain. He hasn't stopped there, at the time of this writing, he has continued his hot streak with points in all 6 games this season.

STUDENTS THANK ARMED FORCES

As the holidays began, Mrs. Winthers's keyboarding students at Arthur L. Johnson High School prepared thank you letters to service members who are deployed during the holidays. Practicing their keystrokes and using formatting techniques learned, students were asked to compose a positive message thanking the service member for his or her service to our country which allows us to peacefully enjoy our freedoms at home.

According to Winthers, "each message was positive, which means a lot to someone far away from home in a challenging situation."

The letters will be forwarded to The Military Support Group of New Jersey Inc., based in Stratford, NJ (TheMilitarySupportGroupOfNJ.com). The group will then forward the letters, along with other items such as care packages, to troops deployed in various places. The group also supports the families of service members.

MARINE BIOLOGY CLASS VISITS SANDY HOOK

Arthur L. Johnson's Marine Biology class recently visited Sandy Hook for the day. The students spent the day gathering data from the salt marsh, beach, and dunes.

The students collected various fish, clams, snails and mussels from the salt marsh using dip nets, sieves and seine nets. Many of the organisms collected are now residing in the saltwater tanks in their classroom. The students conducted current, transect and water quality studies on the ocean side beach. A walk through the dunes provided the students a chance to observe different types of vegetation, a deer, and a few harmless garter snakes.

The class spent the weeks leading up to the field trip learning about the barrier island and salt marsh ecosystems.

"The 80 minutes every other day in the classroom are good, but the 5 hours in the water and on the beach at Sandy Hook make the largest impact. The students have an experience to remember for years to come," said Mr. Van Bergen, ALJ marine biology teacher. Marine Biology is a half year elective offered at ALJ in which both the fall and spring classes visit Sandy Hook.

Arpino stated, “I hope the parents find the background information and the coping strategies for dealing with anxiety useful in supporting their children.”

To view the session, visit the district’s website at clarkschools.org under Parent University. Previous sessions can be found on the district’s website as well. THE POWER OF MUSIC AT THE CLARK PRESCHOOL

The Clark Preschool welcomed Jammin' Jenn for her series of half-hour music therapy sessions on November 20, 2018. The Music therapy helps develop non-musical skills by promoting specific cognitive, motor, perceptual, communicative, and behavioral goals. Ms. Jenn sang and played the guitar to popular children's songs including "The Wheels on the Bus" and "Old MacDonald Had a Farm." The students enjoyed the magic of music, singing along, clapping their hands, shaking noise makers, and playing with animal puppets.

Supervisor of the Preschool/School Nurse Lori Kowalski stated, "Music as a medium is so powerful and is quite transformative in its effect. It positively alters mood and processing which, in turn, produces a foundation for progress in many areas. The main goal for a music therapy program like Jammin' Jenn's is to initiate change in the areas of attention, concentration, impulse control, social functioning, self-esteem, self-expression, motivation, movement, and cognition."

Beginning in January and through April, the Clark Preschool is welcoming Jammin' Jenn back every other week for her customary half-hour music therapy sessions with each classroom. For more information on the power of music as a therapy session, visit jamminjenn.com.

Kowalski continued, "Special thanks to the Clark Board of Education for providing this unique opportunity for the Clark Preschoolers!"

SAFETY: Youth football leagues have definitive rules about the amount of contact at practice. Our coaches are much more aware of the safety requirements, thanks to programs such as USA Football's Heads Up Football. This includes concussion prevention, recognition and awareness. Safety in youth football is paramount.

TRADITION: Clark has had successful football programs on all levels, from youth football through high school.

If we reach the collective goal, "Shark Tank" investor Mark Cuban will donate $35,000 to top participating libraries to expand access to the resources we offer within the community. Participants will earn a small prize for the first 4 hours of reading they log and be automatically entered into our prize drawing for every hour logged! The grand prize is a $50 Amazon gift card! Runners up will get to choose a prize from our prize box. Anyone can participate, but you must be a Clark resident to win the grand prize.
