SCOUTS TOUR GARWOOD FIRE DEPARTMENT

Garwood Girl Scouts

A huge thank you to the Garwood Fire Department for teaching Garwood Daisy Troop 41005 and Brownie Troop 41108 the importance of fire safety.

Firefighter Jason and Firefighter Tommy went over what to do in case of a fire, and showed the girls some tools that are used.

Firefighter Ben and Firefighter Tim showed the girls the ropes around the ladder truck and fire engines. The girls were able to sit inside the fire trucks and set the sirens off.

The girls all earned their Fire Station Patch and finished the requirements for their Safety Pins.

Thank you again to the Garwood Fire Department, the girls had a blast!

PRIMARY ENRICHMENT PROGRAM

Garwood's Lincoln School has a fabulous new program called "Primary Enrichment Program (PEP)" under the advisor Mrs. Tammy Benc for selected elementary students to expand their curiosities in sciences and engineering. Twice per week students enter the science lab and work with middle school science teacher Mrs. KC Bree on a whole variety of projects and experiments. Second grade student Edward Minson would like to be an architect when he grows up and first grade student Charlie King loves little flowers. Together, they built a small greenhouse with moveable openings to grow some wildflowers and other plantings! Next on the agenda is to grow strawberries, rosemary, and basil in their greenhouse to be planted outside in our school garden in Spring!

7TH GRADE STUDENTS LEARN ABOUT TRAITS

Seventh grade students at Lincoln School are learning life sciences with their teacher, Mrs. KC Bree. Their current unit is on reproduction and growth in organisms. Students begin to learn the differences between inherited traits that come from alleles on genes and the acquired traits which come from the environment. To model this phenomenon, students worked in lab groups to determine what their imaginary organism of a "bloop" would look like based on the alleles provided from two parents. Each strand of parental alleles was composed of a color coded bead. Students used a table of possible alleles to decide if a dominant trait, a recessive trait, or a mixed (codominant or incomplete dominant) result showed on the offspring bloop. In the end, each student group was then able to make an environmental change to a trait and construct an explanation as to what will happen to the bloop's future offspring following an environmental change.

PLATE TECTONICS MODELED BY 6TH GRADE STUDENTS

6th grade students at Lincoln School study earth sciences with teacher Mrs. KC Bree during their academic year. This topic includes the theory of plate tectonics. Earth is composed of rigid plates of crust that "float" on the soft solids in the mantle. To model this movement, students donned their gloves and used a clementine and grape jelly. The clementine was peeled into at least 7 pieces and represented the crust of Earth.

Grape jelly represented the soft material of the mantle and was used to coat the interior of the clementine. Then, through much struggle, students tried to float their "crust" back on the mantle. With this hands-on modeling, students could easily see how plates aren't staying in place, but are sliding around, bumping into each other, moving apart from one another and even slipping under or over each other!

TRAIN STATION HISTORY

Garwood Historical Committee

The establishment and growth of Garwood is largely connected to the railroad.

Garwood grew up with the Central Railroad of New Jersey (CRRNJ). In the early 1890's, business- and railroad man Samuel Garwood and his colleague John Rogers Maxwell, then-president of the CRRNJ, acquired large tracts of land in what is now the borough and formed the Garwood Land and Improvement Company in 1891. The name "Garwood," which was applied to the area some years before the incorporation of the Borough in 1903, was said to be in recognition of Samuel Garwood, the chief stockholder of the Land Company. Garwood's first mayor, Frank W. Morse, was part owner of the company.

The Garwood Land and Improvement Company provided industrial building sites that came with the lucrative access to the railroad. When the borough was first developing, it was billed as the "new town on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, between Westfield and Cranford." Two of the largest regional manufacturers at this time were the Singer Sewing Machine Works in Elizabeth and the Potter Press Works in Plainfield; both of which perpetuated the establishment and growth of dedicated rail stations: The Grant Avenue station in Plainfield and The Elizabethport station in Elizabeth. Garwood's station would come to rival these two in benefitting the factories and industries of Garwood. Soon enough, Factories for Hercules Tubeworks, Thatcher Furnace, Aeolian, Weber Piano, and Pianola Company would all be built alongside the railroad tracks. Of course, homes for the factory employees would be built nearby as well.

By the time Garwood's first train station opened in August 1892, many of the town's streets had been graded and put into shape and over 50 houses had been built. The Hall Signal Company building on South Avenue was well underway as was the framework for what was to house the American Steel Wheel Company (the location of C. and C. Electric Motor Company in December 1893). In 1905, according to the New Jersey State Census, Garwood was home to 564 inhabitants and 114 houses. And by 1915, those numbers would more than double to 1642 residents and 231 houses! So busy and important was the new train station to Garwood, that an extension was added in 1918.

Sadly, a fire destroyed the original station early in the morning of June 30, 1976. It was never rebuilt.
