Included in the 2025 awards was $20,000 in student scholarships presented to six deserving high school seniors at the Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School Scholarship Awards Night on May 29. Students were selected based on a combination of their academic records and service to the community. Sharing in a total of $14,000 scholarship awards were the following recipients:

Carolina Conklin, Captain of the Field Hockey team and a dedicated volunteer to youth field hockey camps and clinics. She intends to study business and political science.

In addition, Alexandra Compierchio received the one-time $6,000 Evelyn Whitehorne Memorial Scholarship. This award was administered by the FSPSL thanks to the generosity of the Whitehorne family. The award was presented by Jackie Madsen in honor of her mother Evelyn, a long-time FSPSL member. GIRL SCOUT AWARD PROJECT PRESENTATION

Borough of Fanwood
During a Fanwood Borough Council meeting held On May 5th, Cassidy Fitzgerald, a junior at Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School, presented her Girl Scout Award Project for an augmentative and alternative communication board at LaGrande Park. She said the board is for kids to communicate with each other on the playground. It is aimed for children with special needs such as Autism. She plans to start a GoFundMe to raise donations to offset the costs, which she estimated at between $1,000-$2,000. She said boards can be hung with pillars or can be vinyl signs placed on fences. Cassidy said she would like to have her project completed by the fall.

Mayor Colleen Mahr greeted everyone. Councilwomen Patricia Walsh and Erin McElroy also participated.

Green Team member Laura Lang noted the efforts of the Team including the denim recycling collection they are currently involved with three drop off locations in town for donations of jeans, jackets, shirts and skirts. The Green Team has also initiated recycling projects for crayons, shoes and Legos. Mayor Mahr noted that the borough's Friday E-newsletter has a weekly Green Tip provided by the Green Team.

Public Works Director Clint Dickson invited volunteers to break off into groups to begin the cleanup. Volunteers were divided into groups, led by a DPW staff member, to remove trash in a dozen or so areas of the borough including the Southside and Northside Train Station, Carriage House Park and around Borough Hall, LaGrande Park, Forest Road Park, North Martine and Midway Avenues, and the municipal parking areas. Clean up of Nature Center was led by members of the Fanwood Environmental Commission and the Green Team, where volunteers helped clean up the brook at the center.

The Fanwood Green Team has concluded another successful recycling initiative. As part of our “Fanwood Cares Collection” we were able to keep 149 lbs of denim out of landfills and have it recycled instead as part of a partnership with Blue Jeans Go Green. 18TH CENTURY GRAFFITI FOUND

Historical Society of Scotch Plains / Fanwood

While removing a damaged ceiling of a room at the Osborn Cannonball House Museum at 1840 Front Street in Scotch Plains, an unexpected 18th century surprise was revealed: 18th century graffiti!

The discovery was made by one of the Historical Society of Scotch Plains and Fanwood’s Board members, Jess Mongold, who has been a Historical Society member since 2017. Jess had the good sense to look up at the now exposed 18th century hand-hewn beams, which had been hidden possibly for hundreds of years, and notice a slightly-faded signature. On closer inspection, she realized the signature said “David Osborn” and the date ‘78 (1778) was written in the style of 18th century penmanship. The signature appears to have been made in a chalk-like material.

David Osborn, who would have been 17 in 1778, and his 12 siblings grew up in the house which was built by their father Jonathan Osborn. At one point in the house’s history, David was the owner of the house as well.

But this is more than the graffiti of a random 18th century teenager in an arbitrary 18th century house. David’s family was well-respected and very active with the planning of the early Scotch Plains town, and many community meetings were held at the home. David Osborn, too, was a significant figure in the history of Scotch Plains. He was the first Town Clerk of Westfield (of which Scotch Plains was a part in the 18th century) and the first postmaster of Scotch Plains. He was also instrumental in the founding of the first library in the area.

In order to authenticate the signature, Jess got in touch with The Westfield Historical Society Archives department, who were very helpful in the process. They happened to have in their archives close to 20 documents with the signature of David Osborn. It turns out David had to sign an Oath of Office each year as Town Clerk so there were many examples of his handwriting.

The Historical Society then had to find a handwriting expert to verify that the signature on the beam was genuine and matched the documents signed by David. When they found a firm with the name of “Osborn Associates” they felt it was more than a coincidence. (Not a known relative of the 18th century Osborns, but who knows?) That’s how they found Kelsey L. Osborn, a 5th generation associate of Osborn Associates, her uncle’s firm in Middlesex, NJ. Since 1910, Osborn Associates has been in the field of forensic document examination, and they are handwriting and signature identification experts.

Although Kelsey acknowledged that comparing the signature on paper to one on an old wooden beam is not the ideal situation for comparison, after much painstaking study, she concluded that the signature has “indications, with evidence, to suggest that it is genuine.”

When it came time to close up the ceiling, the signature was hidden, again, for who knows how long this time; however, thanks to photographer Michael Berry of Berry Photo in Atlantic Highlands, NJ, who took many professional photos of the beam, the museum will have proof that the signature exists. The museum will also have another interesting anecdote to share with visitors about a 17-year-old who, like many teenagers today, was a little mischievous some 247 years ago.

The Osborn Cannonball House at 1840 Front Street in Scotch Plains, which is operated by The Historical Society of Scotch Plains and Fanwood, is always looking for volunteers and is open for tours the first Sunday of each month (except Jan. & Feb) and by appointment at (908) 322-6700, Ext. 230 or Info@HistoricalSocietySPFNJ.org.

GERRY COONEY DELIGHTS AT FANWOOD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

Borough of Fanwood

Over 65 people came out recently to hear one of Fanwood's own favorite sons, ex-heavyweight boxer Gerry Cooney. He delighted the crowd with a highlight reel of his fights and stories of his childhood, boxing career, and his more recent endeavors like hosting a boxing talk show on Sirius XM Radio.

Cooney talked about his childhood, and how both he and his brother were encouraged by their father to go into boxing. His brother, Tommy, reached the finals of the New York Golden Gloves Sub-Novice Heavyweight division, but went no further in the sport.

Cooney followed his brother into boxing and got his own start with the Golden gloves at age 16. He had his first professional fight in 1977, and in 1981 he defeated former world heavyweight champion Ken Norton by a knockout just 54 seconds into the first round with a blisteringly powerful attack.

In 1982, he fought heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, and Cooney talked to the crowd about how fight promoter Don King was responsible for the promotion that took on racial overtones that Cooney was not comfortable with.

He talked about one of his few regrets, not trying out for the Olympics when he was young, despite an invitation to do so. He also shared stories about his post-boxing career, creating an organization that helps retired boxers find jobs, his many friends and acquaintances in the boxing world, his work as an inspirational speaker and, since 2010, his work as co-host of "Friday Night at the Fights" Sirius XM Radio.

There was time for plenty of questions from the crowd who were eager to hear more, and Cooney obliged, finally speaking to the crowd about his faith, and leaving them with his thoughts that, "life is good – we have to count our blessings."

Gerry Cooney delighted the crowd with a highlight reel of his fights and stories of his childhood, boxing career, and his more recent endeavors.
